ADEC : Art Price Indicator International 99 before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Art Price Indicator International 99:

Book vs Website By Customer There are quite a few artists listed in this printed publication (about 50,000). However, there are over 2.1 million auction entries on their web site (for which you must pay, of course). The few times I have used the book and the website together, I have found the website to be much more comprehensive. There are many more artists listed on the website. The website even has a much more complete listing of works for each artist than is listed in the book. If you use a resource like this infrequently, my suggestion would be to skip the book and use their website. However, if you want a quick reference to put on your shelf and one that gives a general synopsis of the auction climate, buy the book.
